

OPEN KITCHEN

Wanted: Videographer and Editor to Work on Community Cooking Film Project

Brief:

Open Kitchen are working in partnership with a range of community support organisations to create a series of cook-along recipe videos. The aim is to create a range of easy to follow healthy, sustainable, affordable, easy, and tasty cook-along recipe films that will be shared free online. We are looking for someone to film and edit the videos as follows;

- 5 different recipes
- For each recipe we will create;
  - Very short TikTok / reels output for social media
  - “quick version” 5 minute video
  - A 20 minute / longer version of each recipe that offers more skills tuition and discusses possible ingredients substitutions.

This content will be shared for free with a range of community partners. Our community partners include local food bank and food pantry projects who support families and individuals with emergency food parcels and other services. The films will accompany a resource pack for local projects that offers ideas on how to use the videos, along with a range of project options, to engage local families around cooking, healthy recipes, and healthy and economic food purchasing. Some organisations we're partnering with may also offer cooking equipment and ingredients as part of the support.

Budget:

£240 per video (assumed to be one day to film and one day to edit at £15 per hour) x 5 videos = £1,200 budget for whole project. This project can be offered on a freelance basis, or a temporary employed contract, and would suit a student or recent graduate in media or film.
